When your life has been turned upside down by an injury, you want more than just a lawyer. You want an advocate who studies every detail, fights with everything he has, and treats your case as if it were his own. At Wallentine Injury Law, LLC, Attorney C.J. Dimarco brings exactly that kind of energy to the people he serves across Kansas and Missouri. He combines sharp legal skill with genuine compassion, and that blend is what makes him such a powerful ally when the stakes are high.

C.J. Dimarco devotes his practice exclusively to civil litigation, with a specialty in complex, high-stakes medical-legal matters. These are not simple cases. They demand careful analysis, deep preparation, and a willingness to go head to head with well-funded opponents. C.J. thrives in that environment, and his clients benefit from his refusal to back down. Legal

His focus means that when you work with him, you gain an attorney who understands the intricate connections between medicine, law, and the pursuit of justice. That knowledge often makes the difference between a modest outcome and a life-changing result.

C.J.'s legal career began with a strong academic foundation. He earned his Bachelor of Science in Business Management from Kansas State University in 2016. That business background gave him a practical understanding of how organizations operate, a perspective that continues to serve his clients today.

He then pursued his legal education at the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law, where he graduated magna cum laude in 2019.

Graduating near the top of his class was no accident. It reflected the same dedication and drive that C.J. brings to every client matter now.

During his time in law school, C.J. distinguished himself in ways that pointed to his future success. He served as a member of the UMKC Law Review Journal, an honor reserved for students with exceptional writing and analytical ability. He also worked as a Legal Writing and Research Teaching Assistant, helping fellow students sharpen the very skills that form the backbone of strong advocacy.

Those experiences did more than build his resume. They shaped him into a lawyer who values precision, clear communication, and thorough preparation. When C.J. steps into a courtroom, that discipline shows.

Since graduating, C.J. has built substantial experience litigating complex medicolegal matters. His work covers a broad and demanding range of cases, including personal injury class actions and mass tort product liability actions. These matters often involve many injured people, powerful corporations, and mountains of evidence, and C.J. has learned how to navigate them effectively.

His experience also extends to claims involving general negligence and personal injury, medical malpractice, civil rights violations, and both state and federal constitutional violations. That range gives him a rare versatility. Whatever the legal context, he has the tools to represent clients with confidence and skill.

C.J.'s passion for helping others, combined with his natural competitiveness and his vast experience in high-stakes civil litigation, positions him to succeed for the people who trust him. He does not simply react to what the other side does. He anticipates, strategizes, and pushes forward with purpose. [!\[\]\(a03a7eb2f4046e1d3c76772003e549ea_img.jpg\) Legal](#)

C.J. prides himself on an approach that is aggressive yet empathetic. Those two qualities might seem to pull in opposite directions, but together they define how he practices law. He fights hard because his clients deserve a relentless advocate, and he leads with empathy because he never loses sight of the human being behind every case.

He understands that injured people are often frightened, frustrated, and exhausted. They are dealing with pain, medical bills, and uncertainty about the future. C.J. meets them with respect and understanding while pursuing the strongest possible outcome on their behalf.

One of C.J.'s core beliefs is that every client deserves the same level of attention and quality of representation, regardless of the type of case or how much money is at stake. He does not measure a person's worth by the size of their claim. To C.J., a client with a smaller case deserves the same commitment and effort as a client involved in a major, multimillion-dollar dispute.

That principle reflects the mission of the entire firm. It is what stands behind the promise “You Need Jerry” and the “InJerry” approach that puts client needs first. C.J. lives out that value every single day.

C.J. Dimarco is licensed to practice law in the states of Missouri and Kansas, giving him the ability to serve clients throughout the region that Wallentine Injury Law calls home. He is also admitted to practice in the United States District Court for the Western District of Missouri, which allows him to take on cases at the federal level as well.

This combination of state and federal licensing means C.J. can advocate for clients across a wide legal landscape. Whether a matter belongs in state court or federal court, he is prepared to fight where the case demands.

C.J. works hard for his clients, but he also knows the value of a full and balanced life. Away from the office, he enjoys playing sports and taking part in outdoor activities with his wife and three boys. That love of family and healthy competition mirrors the energy and heart he brings to his legal work.

His personal life keeps him grounded and reminds him daily why his work matters. When you help families recover and rebuild after an injury, you understand just how precious that stability truly is. 🏠 Injury
